EFSA's Young Researcher Initiative

To help early-career researchers participate in the scientific conference "Shaping the Future of Food Safety, Together" organised in Milan, Italy, on 14-16 October 2015 on the occasion of EXPO 2015, EFSA is offering to make a financial contribution to cover the travel and accommodation costs of selected participants.

Early-career researchers interested in the initiative are invited to submit abstracts for the poster sessions.

Abstracts for the poster sessions should be submitted by 3rd April 2015 through the conference's dedicated website www.efsaexpo2015.eu

To receive this contribution, early-career researchers must:

- have their abstracts selected by EFSA for the poster session;
- be below 40 years old at the time of the conference;
- be affiliated with a public institute or a higher education institute;
- have relevant experience in the issues covered by the conference.

EFSA intends to make around 100 contributions, three-quarters of which will be awarded to early-career researchers affiliated to universities/institutes in EU Member States, and a quarter to early-career researchers from non-EU countries.
